Re: Recommendation for Emily Zhang, Structural CAD Designer

To Whom It May Concern:

Emily worked as a Structural CAD Designer from April 3, 2006, to December 16, 2009. During this time she actively managed the organizing and drafting of a wide variety of projects. Emily worked closely with staff engineers to achieve efficient layouts of plans and details and maximize her work efficiency. She has proven her proficiency time and again with AutoCad.

As a member of DCI Engineer's staff, Emily's attitude towards work has been exemplary; she is dependable and is able to complete assignments in a timely manner. She is cheerful, conscientious, and extremely pleasant with staff.

In summary, Emily would make a fine addition to any structural CAD department. Her departure from DCI is due solely to the extreme downturn in the economy. I highly recommend her as an experienced CAD designer.

Very truly yours,
